Before being in charge of the supporting unit in School of Law, Assumption University, in 1997, Ajarn Nachatcha has formerly worked for almost five years as a human resource manager in a construction company in Thailand after her graduation. With her passion to pursue another degree in law, she later on decided to enter law school in 1997 and successfully obtained her LL.B. in 2001, her master's degree in business law in 2005, a Thai bar degree in 2008, and an LL.D. in 2023. Because of her interest in insurance law, law of succession, and logistics law, she was subsequently assigned as a lecturer responsible for these subjects and has engaged in several researches in the fields.
